Maddy's Blog

Maddy's Blog is a personal website that includes past work experiences and addition background information, with the goal documenting and sharing the content.

Maddy's Blog will provide information on personal and professional topics. This website targets other young professionals to inform them on a career path that may look different than theirs. Another type of view could be recruiters/coworkers who are looking to gain more insight into the professional work previously done. Through continual updates, this Blog will provide aggregated information for users to browse. The goal is to document different events and provide helpful insights to views who are interested in the career field.
